

GUILTY

Jett Prescott

Baby where you going with that white dress and those cigarettes
You know that's not the way you want to live
Break it down and take it slow, you're running where you want to go but Someday all that beauty's got to give

In another day this breeze will carry you away
In another day you'll believe I'm just a shadow
Trapped within these mindless walls I'm spinning through the alcohol
But drinking cannot save you anymore

You're getting what you came here for, another broken heart at your door
Your killing curiosity sometimes gets the best of me
So hold me in your vanity, girl -- and you're guilty

Baby what'chya doing with those high heels and your tenderness
You're a dirty mess but I know that's not enough
What you give is what you got but what you got aint who you are You're staring at the moonlight for the answer

In another day your ship will set sail
In another day, I'll be gone

You know you crossed the line this time
Just sign right on the dotted line
You're giving up your soul and left for dead

You're getting what you came here for, another broken heart at your door
Your killing curiosity sometimes gets the best of me
So hold me in your vanity, girl -- and you're guilty

Diamond rings and necklaces a corset dress and a chariot
In another day replacing all of me
Dreaming of that final kiss, tearing through the innocence
These visions can't be all I'll ever see
You're guilty, guilty

You're getting what you came here for, another broken heart is lying at your door
Your killing curiosity will always get the best of me so
Hold me in your vanity, release me from your symphony
You try to steal the rest of me
And child, you're guilty
