

WHERE NOBODY KNOWS

Jett Prescott

White she glows this midnight flower, standing tall upon her tower
Her world fades to black as her life plays back
Around and around and around
Where nobody knows
Nobody knows

Conversations turning red from visions spinning through her head
Today is not a dream, it's just a silent scream
This candle flickers and fades
Where nobody knows
Nobody knows

Guide her through a golden entrance, staring back an empty canvas
Paints your reflection, bearing no exceptions
This mirror shatters your faith
Where nobody knows
Nobody knows

Welcome her with open arms, forgiven all that she has done
But sins have no place around here, everyone is safe my dear
No land, no gold, no faith
Where nobody knows
Oh no one, no one but me

Well you've got nothing to prove
In this hopeless rescue as innocence breaks
Who's left to blame
Give me something to love, something to trust, something in the stars above
Something to see, something in me, something to believe

Where nobody knows
I said nobody knows
Nobody knows....
Oh she's a teardrop shed for the world
She's just my teardrop shed for the world
She's just a teardrop shed for the world
Just my teardrop shed for the world
